Herbarium #1 tirage jet d'encre sur papier coton 40x30cm

”Herbarium is the name of a series of photographs I started in 2020.

This period of confinement has reshaped my way of photographing.

Nonetheless, the object of my research remains the same: it is the landscape as an object of contemplation and more particularly the natural landscape, untouched by human intervention.

In my previous series Rhizomes, the landscape represented was abundant - green undergrowth, luxuriant forests, rock faces - and its restitution implied that I immerse myself in this original nature.

Herbarium is the antithesis of abundance, of profusion.

Herbarium is on the side of denudation, of stripping down, of restraint.

The multitude has given way to the individual.

Each plant is isolated, extracted from its context and photographed on a white background, indoors, in a studio.

The vastness of the landscape has given way to a more restricted, more confined universe.

The distance between the lens and its subject has been reduced.

Nevertheless, the intention, the aim is identical because the gaze, which was lost in the ramifications of trees and roots, is absorbed here in the contemplation of the details of a flower, its texture, its colors, its forms.

The pleasure experienced then is of the same nature as that experienced in larger spaces. ”
